On behalf of the International Transport Workers' Federation (ITF), which affiliates nearly 700 transport unions in 150 countries, representing around 20 million workers worldwide, we express our unconditional support to the SNA (Brazilian National Flight Crew Union) and to all Brazilian crewmembers, who decided to go on strike on November 29th, due to the intransigence of the country's airlines in negotiating the renewal of the Main Collective Labour Agreement.

The ITF stands in solidarity with its colleagues in Brazil and supports them to remain steadfast in their mission to fight for the guarantee of their rights.

The Federation also emphasizes that it repudiates any reprisals against the right to strike and anti-union attitudes, offering all the support in its power to contribute to the achievement of the category's objectives.

The ITF and the international trade union movement will follow this situation closely and we look forward to positive results to this issue.

Thank you for your attention.

In solidarity,
